Re: Recommendation Letter – Hudson Turner

To Whom It May Concern,

Hudson took the initiative earlier this year to reach out to me regarding any internship opportunities within my firm. While I had been potentially open to a law student intern, after interviewing him I decided that it may be a good opportunity to receive some assistance on the business side of my firm while giving someone an opportunity to learn more about business operations. I'm glad I chose Hudson for this endeavor.

Hudson came to me without a large resume of business experience. What impressed me most was his ability to adapt to a new type of environment that was vastly different from his previous experiences. From the onset of the summer he was learning how to analyze and present data, prepare and process documents, and track projects within the law firm. My firm also has bi-weekly meetings with local business networking groups, including The Pride Chamber – Orlando. Hudson covered my attendance at these meetings, including doing presentations on behalf of the firm regarding the services we offer the community. He regularly attended these meetings with me throughout the summer. Other business leaders frequently commented on his ability to represent the firm so well in his presentations and I know he built some important connections in these meetings for his own future.

While Hudson may not have an extensive resume compared to some of his peers, he shows an aptitude to continue to grow and develop his business acumen and awareness. His growth while interning at my firm is proof of that ability. I think there is much for him to gain from any program or position that he is offered and I'm confident that he will continue to grow into rising business professional in all of his endeavors.

Should you wish to reach out to me for more information, please feel free to do so.

Sincerely
